Millwall at Sheffield United

Should Manchester United's game get moved to another day and you want to see an additional game, this one or (especially) the next one would be great options. Sheffield, less than an hour from Manchester by train through the Pennine Mountains, is basically England's Pittsburgh: Steel City, declined, and now young, hip mecca.

United's home, Bramall Lane, is the longest-serving soccer location in the world and is right in the middle of town. A truly great club, fans and atmosphere, and a fun day out from Manchester to say the least. Millwall, from London, has famously rowdy fans and will show up in force.

You can probably get tickets from <https://www.sufc.co.uk>, but if not I can put you behind a goal for $100.

Sheffield Wednesday at Leeds United

Honestly, if I was in the UK this week, this is 100% the game I would go to. An ancient Yorkshire rivalry between two giant clubs with proud histories. Leeds' Elland Road is one of the great stadiums in the country, with 35,000 seats that will be jammed -- this is like seeing the Packers play the Bears at Lambeau.

Also, Leeds is a very cool town to visit, a university town packed with Victorian-era architecture and many classic old pubs. You can read more about seeing a game at Leeds on my site.

As with Sheffield United, you can probably get tickets from the club at <https://www.leedsunited.com>, but if not I can put you behind a goal for $125.

April 19 Games (all at 3 p.m.)

Blackburn Rovers at Queens Park Rangers

Championship (level II) football in a cool part of London called Shepherds Bush. Small stadium (18,000 seats) leads to a great atmosphere. If you can't get tickets from <https://www.qpr.co.uk>, I can put you on the side for $75 per person. I've been to a game there, as well.

Brentford at Millwall

Championship match between two London clubs in a non-touristy and somewhat edgy part of London, with legendary rowdy home fans and an army of visitors. Tickets should be easy from <https://www.millwallfc.co.uk>. You can get a sense of Millwall from this story.

Bristol Rovers at Wimbledon

A League One (level III) game in a nice, quiet part of town. The club has a cool history; their fans re-started it after the original was moved to become MK Dons. Great little family club that's also close to the famous tenni center (which you can tour) and Hampton Court Palace, home to Henry VIII and his wives. It's surrounded by a massive park and garden and also has a maze, tours, a kiddie park and all sorts of activities. Check it out at hrp.org.uk/hampton-court-palace. Tickets to this game would be easy and cheap at the ground.

Charlton at Oxford United

Yes, it's that Oxford, just an hour from Paddington Station by train and an awesome place to visit. The club is similar to Wimbledon, in League One, but with a less interesting stadium. Tickets are a snap.

April 20 Games

Burnley at Chelsea

Big London club in a small (41,000-seat) stadium in a cool part of town, easy to reach. Chelsea is a top destination, and with a smaller club in town, prices are lower than usual. Read more about these options, with photos and video, in this blog post. All seats are on the side; see chart on page 5. Tickets would be delivered to your hotel a day or two before the game.

Price	Seats	Perks / Lounge
$225	West Upper, near goal line	Voucher for evening city bus tour
$275	East Middle, near penalty area	Captains; program, free coffee/tea, cash bar
$325	West Upper, near penalty area	Museum/stadium tour, 2-course meal, free bar, former players, personal gift
$350	West Upper near penalty area	Zola/Wise: Pre-match meal, free bar pre & post
$350	East Middle near 18-yard line	Centenary: 3-course buffet, free coffee and tea Video from these seats .

Crystal Palace at Arsenal

At Arsenal, I have one package available: club level behind a goal, in blocks 72 to 76, just above the away fans, with a free bar at halftime and a voucher for a stadium tour on a different day. (Here's a post on this one.) For this game, that package is $250 per person, tickets delivered to your hotel a day or two before the game. There's a seating chart on page 5.

Leicester City at West Ham

As we discussed, this is not the most exciting option because of the stadium, but it should be a good game. Tickets are $100 for upper tier behind a goal, $125 for lower tier behind a goal, $125 for upper tier on the side, and $200 for VIP seats on the halfway line with free drinks.

April 22 Game

Leeds United at Brentford

If you're still around, consider a game at this charming old-fashioned club with a 12,000-seater stadium famous for having a pub at each corner. It's the only one in the country with that designation! This is family football at its finest, and in this case a massive army of Leeds people will be in town. Should be a great atmosphere. Here is a post from when I saw a game there.

If you can't get tickets from <https://www.brentfordfc.com>, I can put you behind a goal near those Leeds fans for $75. This is in West London on the way out to Heathrow Airport.
